Description

In a former workshop for furniture that has been transformed into a loft, the monochrome kitchen island NX 510 in Sahara beige matt velvet that almost seems to float is standing in front of unfinished walls and striking concrete. Thanks to the visually reduced island frame in onyx black with its slender legs, it lends a feeling of filigree lightness. With its overall effect of cubic minimalism, the island proves to be a stand-alone communicative piece in the casual kitchen architecture.

Highlight of the planning: the tall unit with four retractable doors that is standing in the background. Not only, it hides a part of the kitchen but it is also an architectural design feature. Everything is hidden behind retractable doors that open directly by a simple touch before disappearing in the lateral part of the carcass. This is where the brand's claim that focusses on precision, elegance, creativity and functionality is shown.

Material description

NX 510 Matt velvet lacquer, available in 13 colours

The surfaces created by matt velvet lacquer are convincing from a visual and a haptic point of view and produced by a water based lacquer system with UV drying. This makes it possible to meet ecological demands and to assure high resistance. The lacquer is applied to a high-quality chip board with a special melamine coating and a thick edging on all four sides.

NX 640 Wood front oak elegant, available in 6 wood decors

Genuine wood fronts in oak elegant and natural walnut with their discreet grain pattern spread a warm, contemporary aesthetics. With their neutral shades, the six different decors are ideal combination partners, for example for matt lacquers in bright colours. Because wood is a natural product, each front is unique in terms of grain pattern thus spreading a singular charm.
